

A movie poster for 'Kage no Koe: Chapter II'. The background is a dark, atmospheric illustration of a Japanese landscape at night. In the foreground, a man with long, dark, messy hair and a goatee holds a katana vertically. He has a serious, intense expression. Behind him, a woman with dark hair tied in a bun looks forward with a calm but determined expression. She is holding a bow and arrows. In the background, there is a large, full moon, a traditional Japanese torii gate, and a temple building with a tiled roof. The overall color palette is dark, with blues, greys, and blacks, accented by the red of the woman's hair and the red circular graphic around the title.

SRISHTI STUDIOS
PRESENTS

KAGE NO KOE

影の声

CHAPTER II
THE MOUNTAIN BEYOND 山の向こう

THE SILENCE WAS ONLY THE BEGINNING.

A FEW MONTHS AFTER THE EVENTS IN KAGAMORI...

Renjiro leaves Kagamori, but the voices still linger in his mind.

"I thought it was over...
But the silence feels different now.
As if it's leading me somewhere."

Are you really leaving, Renjiro-san?

Yes, little one.
There are more mountains... and I need to find out why the voices exist.

Will you come back?

If I do...
I hope it's a world where you never have to hear them.

RENJIRO BEGINS HIS JOURNEY
THROUGH THE NORTHERN PROVINCES.

Each village is different... but the same fear lives in their eyes.

In every village, he sees the same symbol.

But each place has its own strange rule.

IN HOSHIMURA VILLAGE...

We do not sing here.
Songs attract them.

IN TSUKINAMI VILLAGE...

We do not write names.
Names give them strength.

IN MIZUKAWA VILLAGE...

We do not look into still water
after sunset.
They watch from reflections.

Different rules...
But the same symbol.
This cannot be a coincidence.

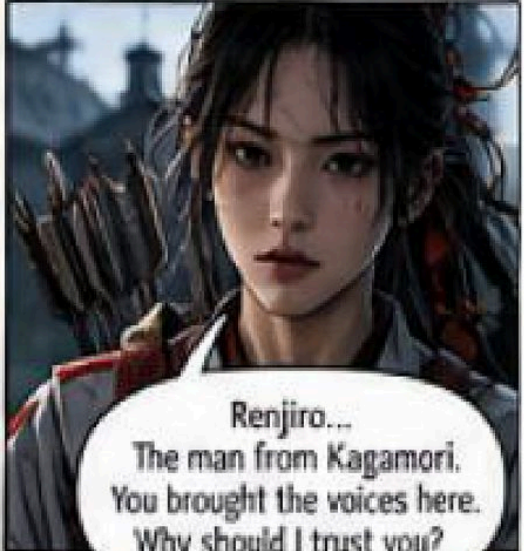

IN A REMOTE SHRINE VILLAGE...

Stop right there!
Who are you and why
are you here?

I mean no harm.
I'm Renjiro.
Just passing through.

Renjiro...
The man from Kagamori.
You brought the voices here.
Why should I trust you?

I didn't bring them.
I fought them.

Maybe.
But now they are spreading.
So either you are the cause... or you're the only one who can stop them.

AT THE SHRINE...

You've been studying these entities?

For years. My family has kept records of the mountains. Kagamori is only one of seven.

Seven?

Yes. Seven mountains.
Seven seals.
Seven different voices.

And each one is connected.

Then we need to find the others.

You're not the only one searching.
There are people who want to use the voices... not stop them.

THAT NIGHT, A VISITOR ARRIVES...

You killed the voice beneath Kagamori.

So why are you afraid?

THE NAMELESS MONK

I'm not afraid.
Who are you?

I am no one.
A traveler. A witness.

You didn't kill it, Renjiro.
You only released a fragment.

What do you mean?

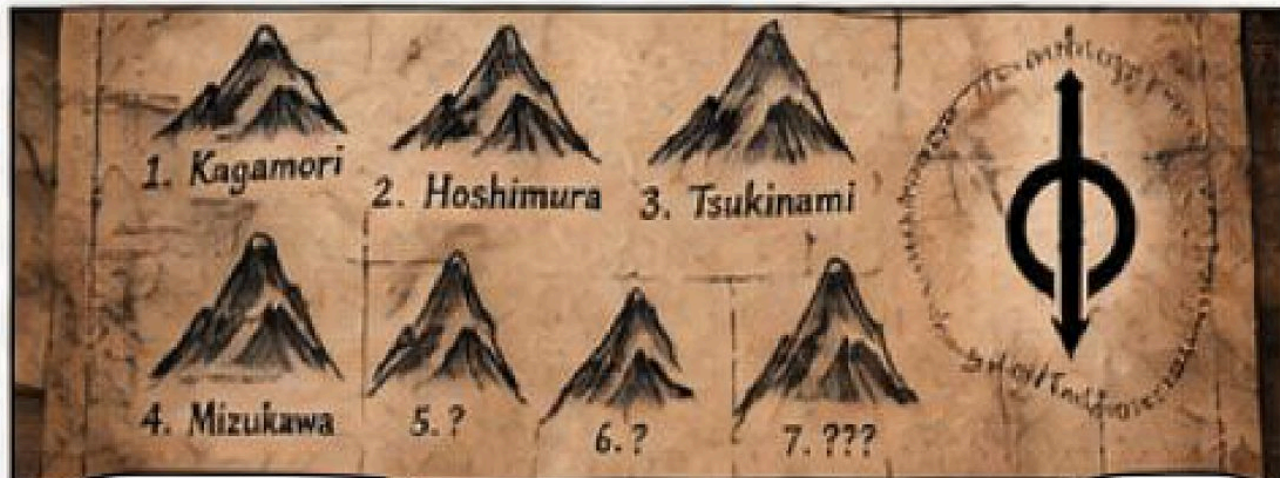

The voices are not separate.
They are pieces of something much older.
The seven mountains...
are not prisons.
They are parts of a whole.

AKARI SHOWS RENJIRO AN ANCIENT MAP...

These are the seven mountains.
Each seal contains a different entity.

But look at the seventh...

That symbol...
it's different.

That symbol doesn't represent a prison.

A door.

Then what does it represent?

A door to what?

And why does it feel like someone is waiting on the other side?

TOGETHER, RENJIRO AND AKARI HEAD TOWARDS THE NEXT MOUNTAIN...

An abandoned fortress...
where samurai once disappeared
without a trace.

We're close.

I can feel it.
The voices are louder
here.

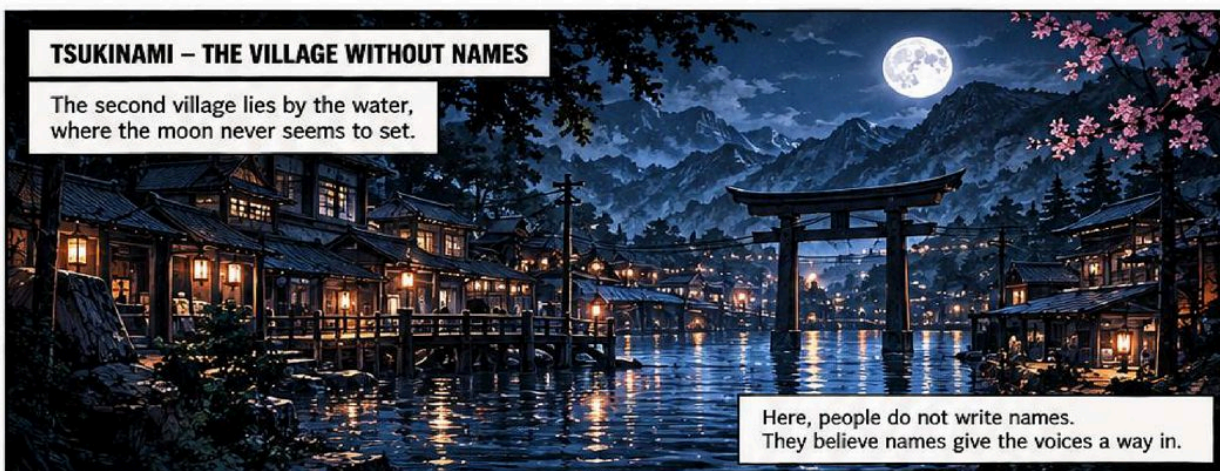

Whatever waits inside...
it will change everything.

TSUKINAMI – THE VILLAGE WITHOUT NAMES

The second village lies by the water, where the moon never seems to set.

Here, people do not write names.
They believe names give the voices a way in.

So this is Tsukinami...

Notice how no signboards have names. Not even the inn, not even the shrine.

They believe that without a name,
the past cannot follow.

Stranger... you are not from here, are you?

We do not speak of people.
Only of the river,
the moon, and what sleeps beneath.

Do the voices come here too?

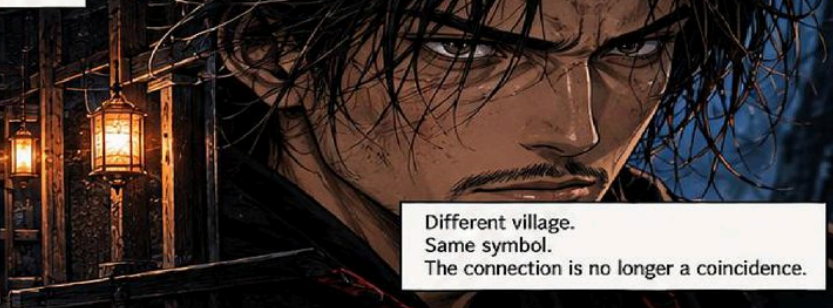

They are always here.
But we do not call them.
We simply live with them.

At night, the river reflects
more than the moon.

Sometimes... it reflects faces that do not exist.

The second symbol... the same as the first.

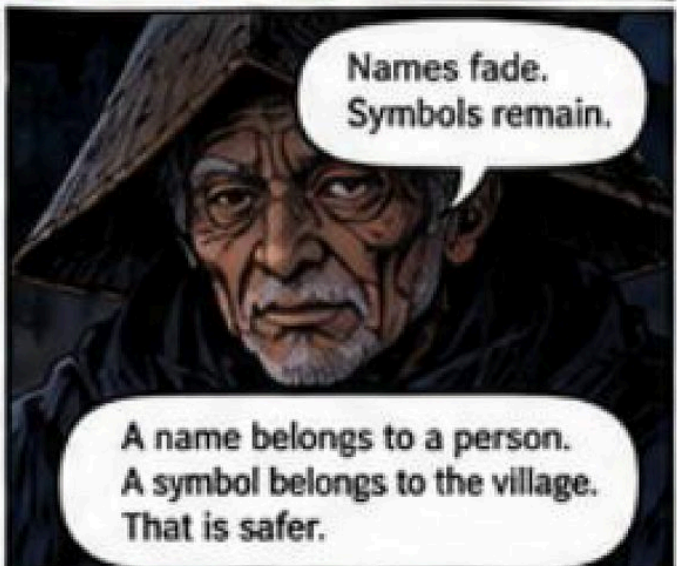

Different village.
Same symbol.
The connection is no longer a coincidence.

SYMBOLS IN DAILY LIFE

In Tsskinami, symbols are everywhere.
On houses, shops, records... even graves.

They do not write names.
They do not speak names.
They do not ask names.

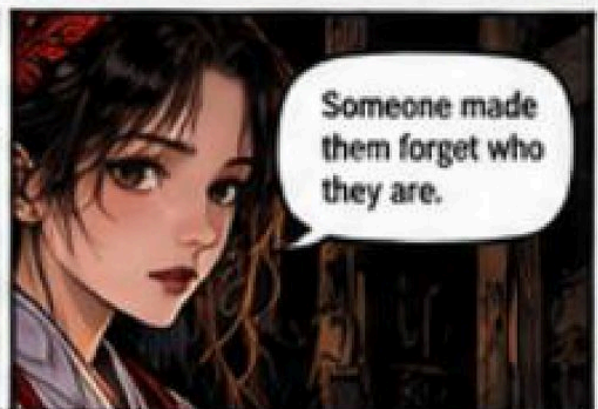

Names fade.
Symbols remain.

A name belongs to a person.
A symbol belongs to the village.
That is safer.

It's more than a tradition...
It's fear.

Someone made them forget who they are.

In Mizukawa, the villagers never look into still water after sunset.

They say the water shows another world.
And the voices live there.

Still water is to be avoided.
Mirrors are covered.

If you see your reflection...
you may hear them.

The same fear... different form.

Three villages,
three rules...
but the same symbol.

THE SAME SYMBOL

Renjiro and Akari compare their findings.

Hoshimura — songs.
Tsukinami — no names.
Mizukawa — no reflections.

But the symbol is the same.

THE NAMELESS MONK

As they leave Mizukawa, a stranger appears.

You have come far...
Renjiro.

Who are you?

Names are unnecessary.
I am simply a monk.

You killed the Kagegami at Kagamori, but you only severed a fragment.

A fragment...?

The noises you hear now... they are pieces of something much larger.

THE SEVEN MOUNTAINS

There are seven mountains.
Seven entities.
All connected.

1. Kagamori

2. Hoshimura

3. Tsukinami

6. Miharani

5. Seiryūra

7. ???

6. Kurotani

Each mountain holds a part of the whole.
Not prisons... but seals.

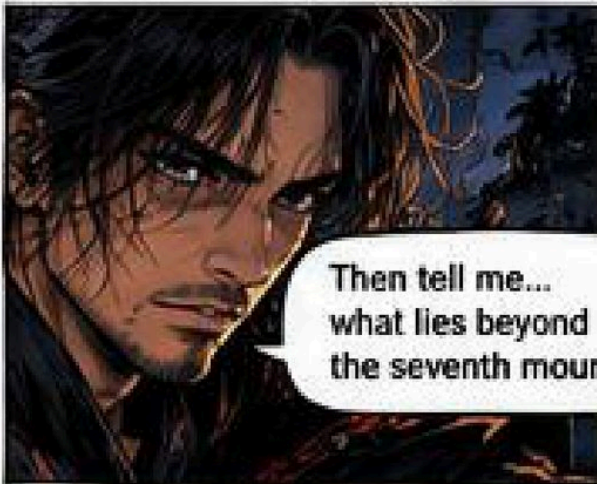

When one seal weakens,
the voices spread.

What you saw at Kagamori was only the beginning.

So the voices... they are the same?

Yes. Different forms, same source.

WHAT LIES BEYOND

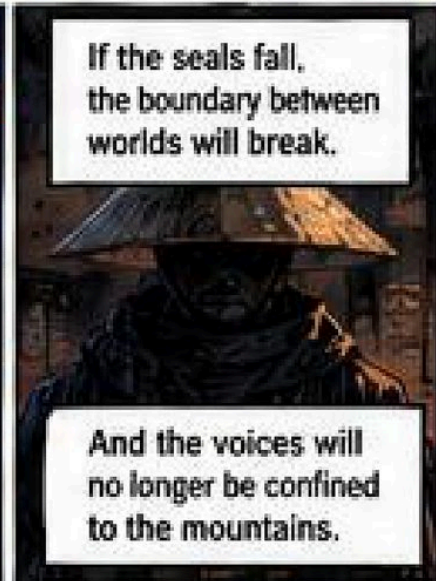

Then tell me...
what lies beyond
the seventh mountain?

Something greater than you can imagine.

The first six mountains contain the voices...
The seventh contains the source.

If the seals fall,
the boundary between worlds will break.

And the voices will no longer be confined to the mountains.

Can it be stopped?

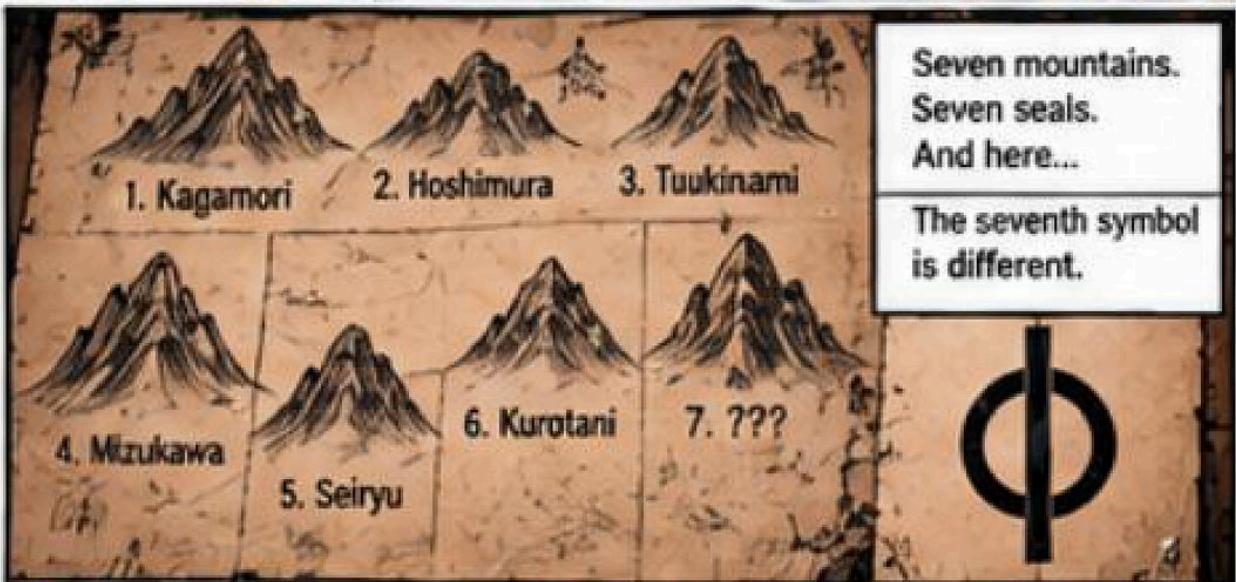

Only if you reach it first.
But the path will test who you truly are.

THE ANCIENT RECORDS

That night, Akari discovers something in the abandoned shrine archives.

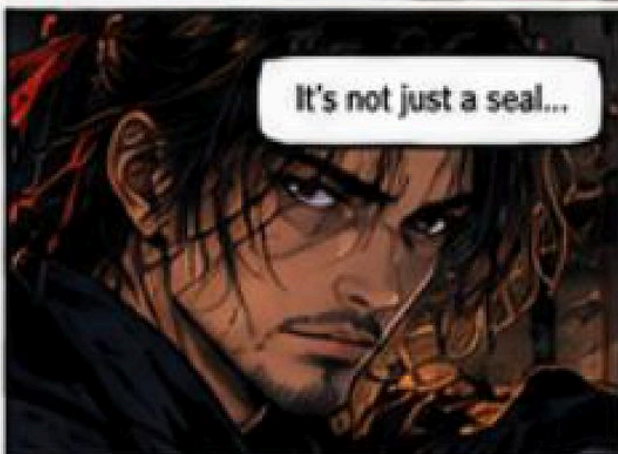

Look, Renjiro...
These are the original shrine records.

Seven mountains.
Seven seals.
And here...

The seventh symbol is different.

It's not just a seal...

It looks like a door.

A door to what?

THE SEVEN MOUNTAINS

1. Kagamori

2. Hoshimura

3. Tsukinami

4. Mizukawa

5. Seiryu

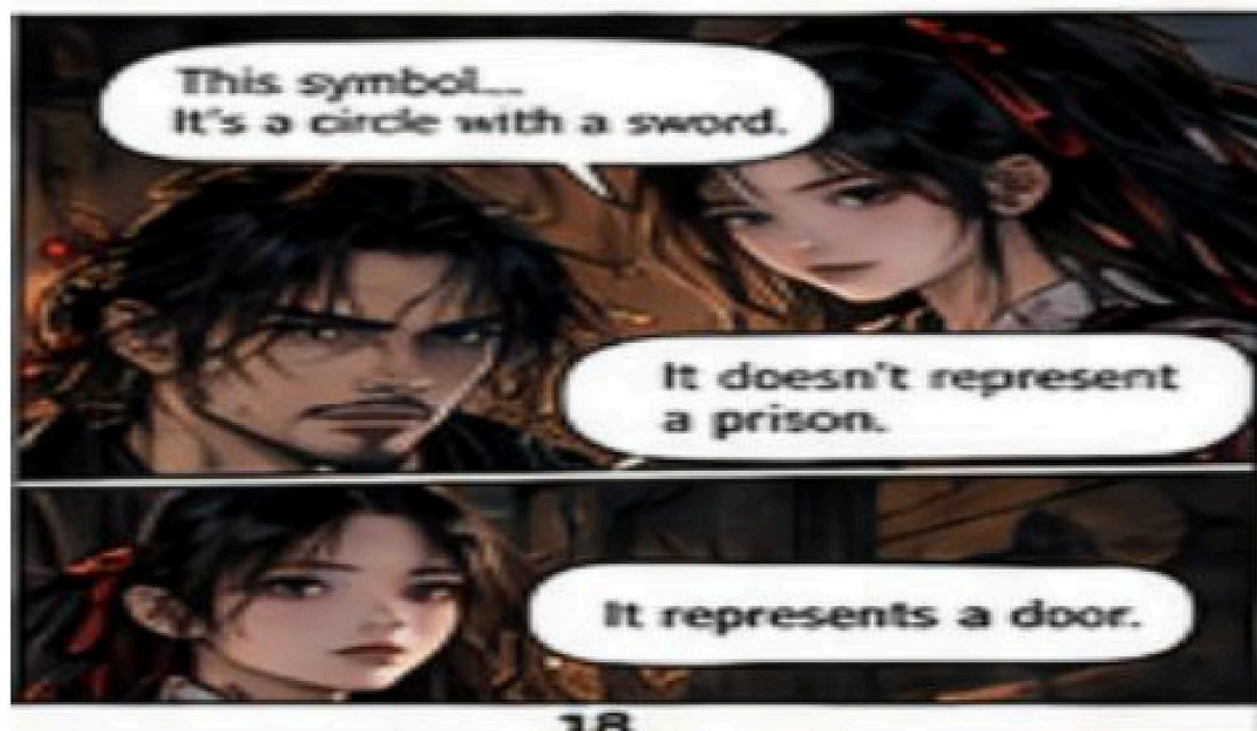

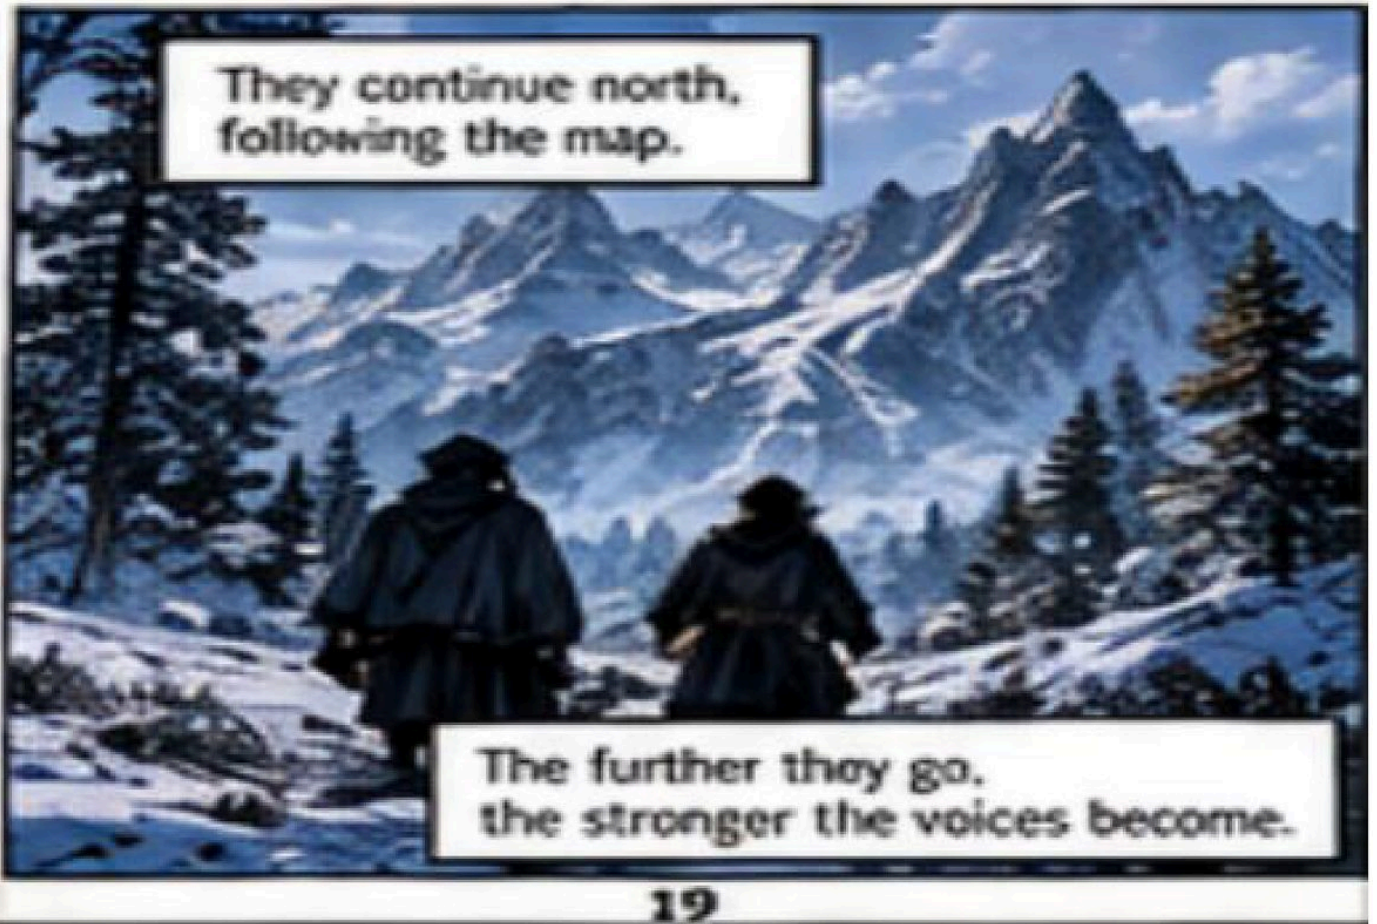

6. Kurotani

7. ???

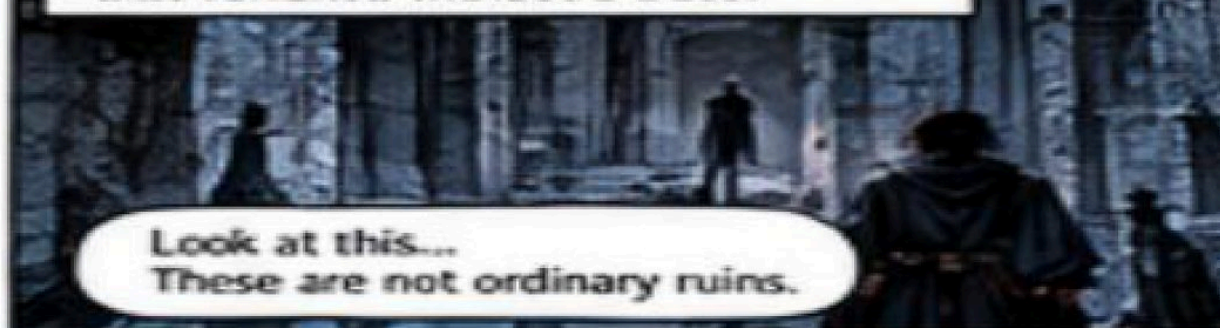

The same symbol on each mountain...
But the seventh is different.

AN ABANDONED FORTRESS

At last, they reach an ancient fortress.
Once home to a samurai force that vanished without a trace.

Look at this...
These are not ordinary ruins.

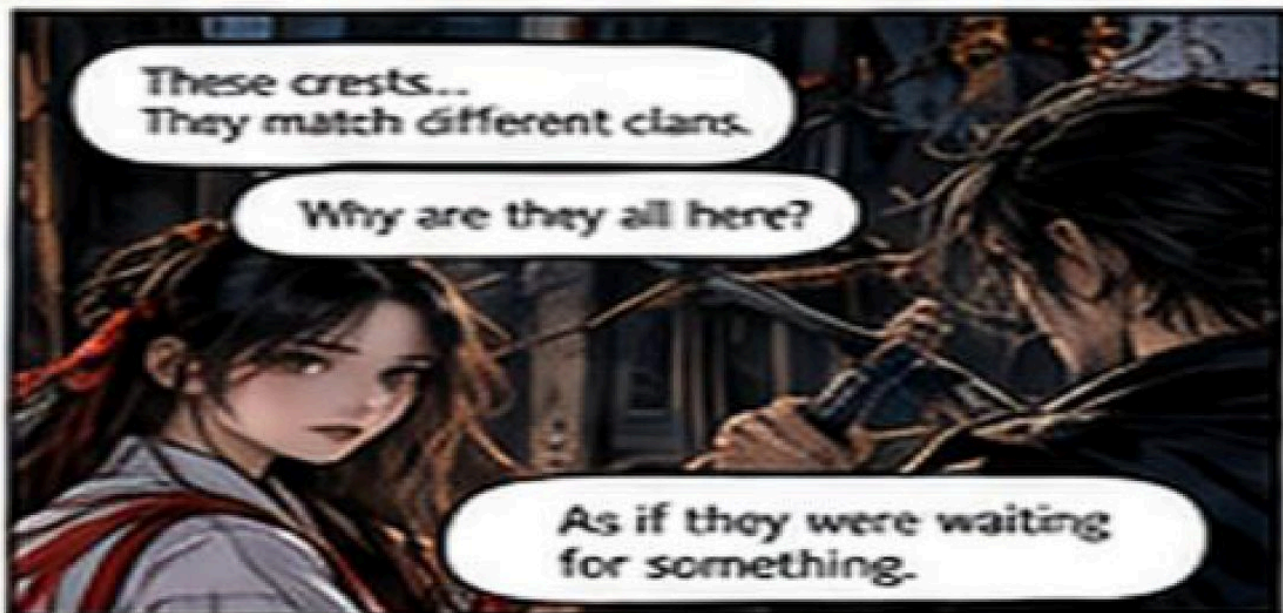

21

Hundreds of swords...

Every sword here belongs to a samurai who disappeared centuries ago.

22

These crests...
They match different clans.

Why are they all here?

As if they were waiting for something.

23

Then Renjiro finds a sword with a familiar crest.

This crest...
It belonged to Lord Takamasa.

24

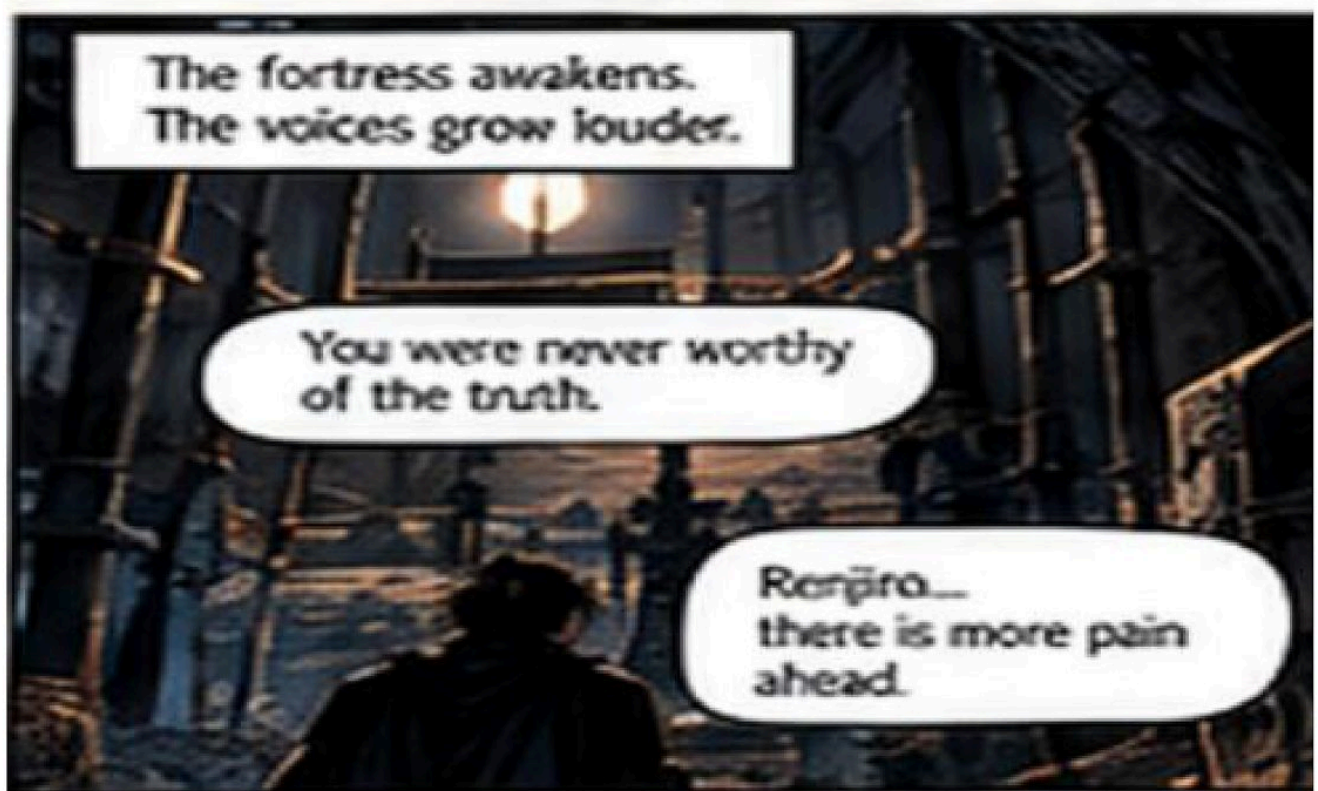

35

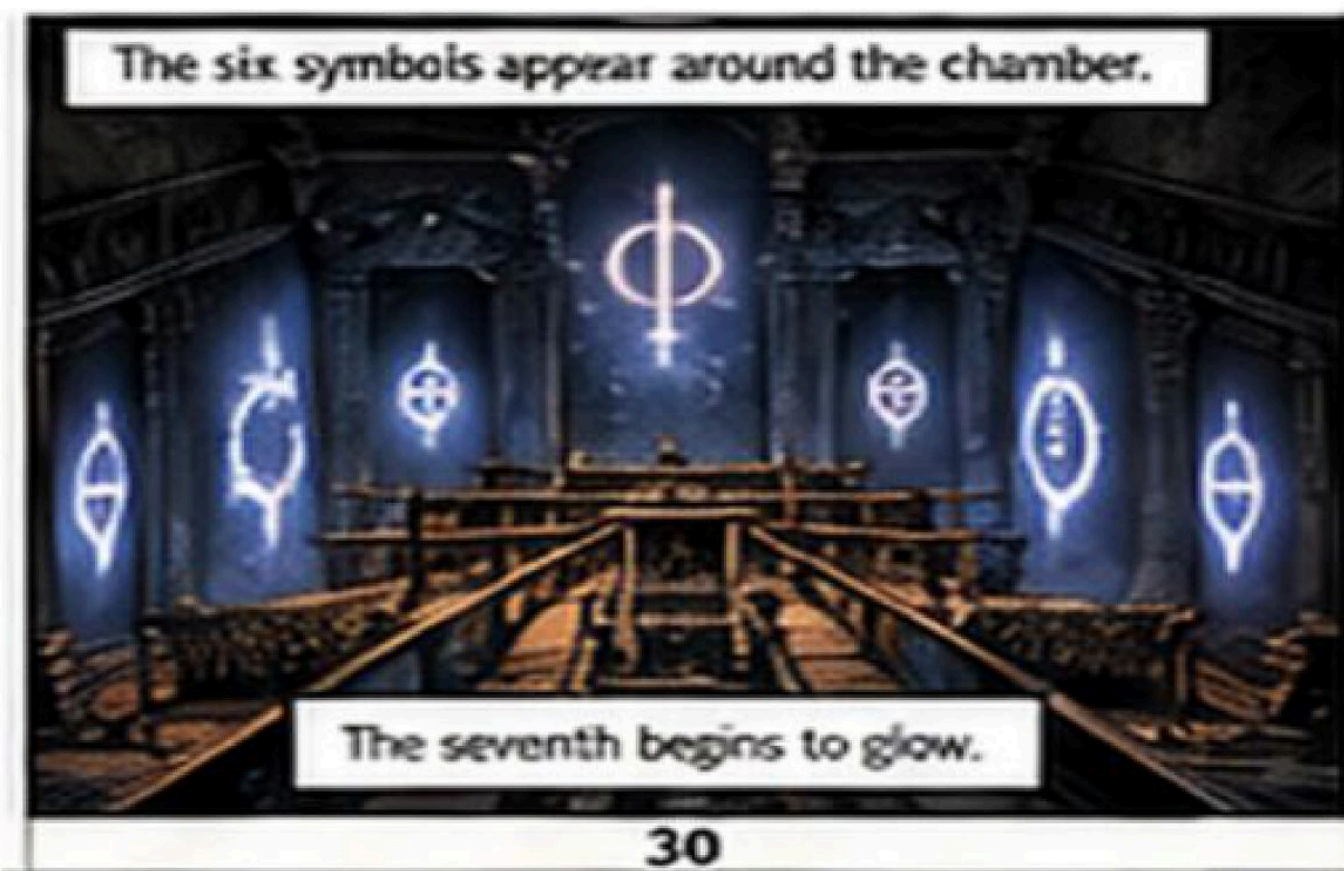

26

27

28

The door is opening...

And whatever is on the other side...
is finally answering.

31

If this is the truth...
I will face it.

No matter what voices are waiting.

32

TO BE CONTINUED...

CHAPTER III
THE SEVENTH MOUNTAIN

A misty, atmospheric landscape featuring two traditional Japanese torii gates. A path of glowing orange light leads from the bottom right towards the gates. The background consists of jagged, misty mountains under a dark, cloudy sky.

New mountains.
Deeper voices.
A greater truth.

KAGE NO KOE

影の声

TO BE CONTINUED IN CHAPTER III
THE SEVENTH MOUNTAIN

